Emmanuel specializes in intellectual property law with a strong focus on patents, know-how and trademarks, dealing with both contentious and transactional matters.

By virtue of his dual admissions in England and Wales and in France, as well as his professional experiences in Germany, he has been involved in a range of multi-jurisdictional intellectual property matters, including litigation of electronics, pharmaceutical and consumer products patents, validity litigation, compulsory licences and technology transfer agreements, as well as complex trademark infringement cases.

Emmanuel's experience is complemented by his expertise in drafting and negotiating domestic and international IP agreements and technology transfer agreements.

Emmanuel has been President of the Licensing Exclusive Society (L.E.S. France) since 2012, and was reelected as President in December 2014

Emmanuel began practicing in intellectual property in 1994 with the French law firm CMS Francis Lefebvre in Brussels and Paris. He pursued his legal practice in 1997 within Bird & Bird, first in London, before moving to the new office launched in Paris. In 2004, Emmanuel founded the Paris law firm EGAocats dedicated to intellectual property and information technology. He joined Pinsent Masons as head of the French IP department for the opening of the Paris office practice in September 2012.
